

REGISTRANTS TO HANDLE NARCOTICS NUMBER 5508

According to a survey made yesterday by Collector of Internal Revenue Rex Goodcell, covering registrants who hold permits under the Federal government to manufacture, dispense and use narcotics in the Southern California collection district, it was found that there are 5508 registrants of all classes.

It was disclosed by the report that there are 206 delinquent registrants who have failed to file the necessary return and receive authorization for the manufacture and administration of narcotics under the Harrison Narcotic Act.

Collector Goodcell warned the delinquents that the mere fact that they held no narcotics in their possession did not relieve them from the necessity of properly registering, and that if they retained any order forms for narcotics, issued by the Internal Revenue bureau, and failed to register, or to return them to the department for cancellation, they held themselves liable to the penalties under the Harrison Narcotics Act.

A list of all delinquents who have failed to register or to properly account for order forms for narcotics held by them has been prepared in Collector Goodcell's office, and field officers of the Internal Revenue office will check up on all delinquent registrants who should have qualified not later than July 1, and enforce the penalties provided for by the Harrison Act.

As a penalty of $2,000 or a term of imprisonment of five years, or both, may be imposed upon violators of the narcotic laws. Collector Goodcell strongly urges those who have not made the necessary accounting of order forms and narcotics to do so at once and avoid liability to the penalties which may attach.

L. W. CHOBE SAYS HE IS PLANNING FLOAT FOR 1924

L. W. Chobe, chairman of the Glendale float committee, visited the Glendale Chamber of Commerce yesterday and announced he was taking the initial steps in the planning of a Glendale float in the Rose Tournament for 1924. The sweepstakes winner may easily and naturally be first prize winner in some class, and, this sweepstakes will be the best float in the tournament regardless of its class.

Boys' Shop Leaps Into Prominence as Business Center

The Boys' Shop, 104 West Broadway, has sprung into prominence as one of the busiest places in Glendale, and Mr. Richards, the genial proprietor, states that if business increases as it has during the last few weeks, he will have to add one or more salesmen to his force to take care of the new customers.

And there is a reason for this increased business. The people of Glendale and vicinity have found out that they can get anything they want for the boys at this up-to-date store from a boy's suit to a boy's necktie, and it will be the latest style, the best quality and sold at the lowest prices. Mr. Richards has specialized on boys' clothing, etc., for many years and this valuable experience is giving him a wonderful business right here in Glendale. He carries a very large and varied stock of boys' clothing, and prides himself on having the best lines made. He knows the boys' line, is frank enough to tell the boy or his mother the advantages and disadvantages in buying certain goods, and often helps the mother over obstacles which have been of considerable worry, especially where there are several boys in the family to clothe. His store is an exclusive boys' store, but it is no uncommon thing to see the store filled with mothers and other women selecting wearing apparel for the boys. Mr. Richards says his prices are lower than can be found in most stores and the quality of his goods is the best.

SOCIETY CIRCUS HANDKERCHIEF BOOTH PLANNED

Plans for the handkerchief booth at the Tuesday Afternoon club society circus were made at the meeting of the Maids and Young Matrons section of the club that met on Thursday afternoon in the tea room with Mrs. C. G. Putnam, curator, presiding. A committee, consisting of Mrs. A. Seidel, Mrs. J. Harvill and Mrs. Goldstein was appointed to attend to the securing of the handkerchiefs for the booth. It was suggested that the rainbow idea be carried out at the booth.

The members discussed the feasibility of securing a woman to care for the children of members during the section meetings, as permission had been to use the dressing room upstairs in the clubhouse. This matter will be taken up again at the next meeting of the section.

The regular dues for the section for the entire year are 50 cents. It was decided that a small fee of 10 cents a meeting for the first three meetings be made for a refreshment fund and that four hostesses be appointed for each meeting. The following refreshment committee was also chosen: Mrs. W. McCurdy, Mrs. P. A. Olson and Miss Mae Lyon.

Mrs. Mae Rosenberg will conduct a twenty-minute drill in parliamentary law at every meeting of the section, beginning at 2 o'clock. There will be a short business session at 2:30 and the program will begin at 3 o'clock. After these announcements the meeting was turned over to Mrs. G. R. Postle, program chairman. The program included vocal selections by Miss Carrow of the Cavanah Studio, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Ludlow, also of the Cavanah Studio, "I Pass by Your Window," and "Love Brings a Little Gift of Roses." Mrs. Harry Greenwalt was then introduced and gave a short talk on "Parliamentary Law." At the close of the afternoon refreshments were served during a social hour.

ARTS AND CRAFTS PROVE MOST ATTRACTIVE

For the woman who loves to do creative work and make pretty things from bits of this and scraps of that, the arts and crafts sections of the Tuesday Afternoon club are proving a great source of enjoyment. This work has proven so popular that there are two arts and crafts sections instead of one, as when first organized. At the meeting of Section B, held Thursday from 10:30 until 2 o'clock in the palm court of the clubhouse, with Mrs. W. C. Wattles, curator, in charge, there were twenty-five ladies present. The instructor for the day was Miss Martha Ray, who has charge of making table favors for the Coconut Grove and Ambassador Hotel dining room, in which work she instructed the members. Some very clever Halloween favors, candy baskets, etc., were made by the ladies.

The next meeting of Section B will be held in two weeks. The subject to be taken up for study at that time will be the making of French flowers.

Mr. Stevenson was formerly with the Chicago Little Theater. The members of the cast of "Dreamland" will also be present at that time.

Glendale Community Players are interested in forming a social section that will be open to actors and non-actors. It is planned that this section will meet every week for social purposes. Those who would be interested in informal programs, dances, etc., are invited to be present.

Rehearsals for "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," which is to be produced the first week in November, will be resumed on Wednesday evening, October 17.

She stated that this was the first international convention ever held and representatives were present from all over the world. Mrs. E. B. Moore, president of the Glendale Federation of P.T. A., was present and gave a short talk. A delightful group of vocal solos were given by Mrs. Helen Graham Cole, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. G. H. Horne.

The association decided to have a first and second prize for the rooms having the largest number of mothers present at the P.T. A. meetings. The first prize, a picture, was awarded yesterday to Miss Edwards' room and the second prize, a vase of flowers, to Mrs. Emery's room. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE AT PHYSICIANS' CLUB

Dr. Elliott Alden, surgeon of the county hospital in Los Angeles, gave a most interesting illustrated lecture on "Injuries to the Head" at the regular meeting of the Glendale Physicians' club, held Thursday night, the greater part of which dealt with gunshot wounds. The theme of his paper was that the breaking of the bone was no indication of the seriousness of the injury. He stated that often the brain would be seriously injured when the bones were not broken and that a serious injury might result from only a superficial wound. Dr. Alden urged that every injury to the head be carefully examined in order to avoid any infection extending to the brain.

Dr. F. M. Rosseter was in charge of the short business session of the club at which Dr. Floyd Thompson was elected to act as secretary for the remainder of the year. The next meeting of the club will be in two weeks at the noon hour.

The Glendale Press carrier boys were guests recently of Manager Albright at the T. D. & L. Theater and sat breathless through the performance of a western drama that just suited their excitable natures. The boys are strong for Albright, whom they have dubbed "The Head Waiter," probably on account of the uniform he wears during the evening.

The man who constantly complains that he is being robbed, is open to the suspicion of being a robber.

RECEPTION TO NEW MEMBERS

A reception was held last evening by the S to Z division of the membership of the Glendale Presbyterian church, for the new members who have been received since last July. The gathering was held in the social hall of the new Sunday school building. These rooms had been tastefully decorated and the fire in the fireplace gave an air of added warmth and cheer.

Rev. Louis Tinning, the assistant pastor of the church, introduced the chairman of the program committee, Mr. C. E. Stewart. Mr. Stewart first announced the Male Quartet of the First Methodist Episcopal church, which rendered several numbers in a most pleasing manner. Miss Anita Fletcher read two selections which were enthusiastically received. The two little Fittinger sisters, Misses Corinne and Mary Ellen, gave three numbers. This was followed by a community singing, led by Mr. O. W. Andersen and accompanied by Miss Helen C. Capus.

Mr. John Swearingin gave a cordial address of welcome to the large class of new members who were the guests of honor for the evening. A response for the new members was made by Mr. Philomena Bevis, who has recently come to Glendale from St. Louis. GLENDALADE LADIES AT PARLIAMENTARY LAW MEET

Mrs. Charles S. McKelvey, parliamentarian of the Los Angeles district Federation of Women's clubs, called a parliamentary law conference in Los Angeles on Thursday to which all club presidents and members in the district who were interested in parliamentary law were invited. Those in attendance from the Tuesday Afternoon club of Glendale were Mrs. C. A. Brandstater, curator of the parliamentary law section, Mrs. Fred Abbey and Mrs. W. H. Verity. These meetings are to be held once a month throughout the year.

It was suggested that each club in the district have parliamentary law drills in taking up introduction of business, motions, debates, elections, and aim to bring out the timid members of the club in that way and make parliamentary law a delight and not a "bug-bear."

MANY HITS IN "DREAMLAND'S LAST PERFORMANCE"

Marked improvement was shown in the manner in which the cast of "A Night in Dreamland" put on the second night's performance of this musical fantasy on Thursday, at the Tuesday Afternoon's Club auditorium for the benefit of St. Mark's Guild of the Episcopal church. "In Glendale's Rose Garden" proved to be one of the most popular "hits" of the evening with Miss Flora Phyllis Kilpatrick singing "Rosebud." There was a chorus of twenty pretty girls in Grecian robes of white and carrying American Beauty roses.

The many friends of Mrs. C. A. Parker were delighted with her singing of "In the Garden of My Heart," which was one of the numbers at the Garden Party scene. Several very clever specialty dances were put on by Miss Kathleen Woods. The scene at the movies and the wedding march provided some excellent bits of comedy that were very much appreciated.

DESPERATE BOOTLEGGERS

Probably there is nothing in the report that bootleggers have offered a reward of $10,000 for the slaying of the head of the prohibition forces in this state. Doubtless they would be glad to have him killed, and to wipe out his entire staff, but hardly would they venture to be so bold about it. The bootlegger who shrieks at a fine, and dreads going to prison, would prefer either of these experiences to that of being hanged. The very fact that the rumor is extant reflects the desperation of the bootlegging fraternity.

Determination to enforce the law is becoming more and more marked. The logic of circumstances requires its enforcement. If there is a public sentiment sufficient to modify the law in any respect, and it were to succeed by lawful methods in doing so, the aspect would be changed utterly. Just now the question is as to whether this is a law-abiding or a law-defying people.

The bootleggers take a mean advantage of the fact that there can be found a market for their wares. Under false labels they are purveying poisons. Within a year 2000 people have died as the direct result of indulgence in the sort of stuff available. There is no way of telling the number that may have been maimed, or crippled mentally, by such indulgence. The offenders would not be strengthening their cause by the agency of murder. On the contrary such a course would concentrate public wrath upon them, and render more easy their effacement from human activities.

MATERNAL RIGHTS FORFEITED

Recently in a Visalia court a mother demanded the custody of her three children. She was present to voice her desires. She bore visible evidence of prosperity. The evidence showed that five years earlier she had abandoned the little ones, the oldest then seven. They had been taken by a kind family, cared for as though the blood kin of their guardians, the mother meanwhile doing nothing for them. Then all at once she appeared with an expression of readiness and even anxiety to reclaim them. The court considered the matter, and permitted the children to remain with the couple who had been their foster parents. Doubtless the general opinion will uphold this course.

This is not an infrequent instance. Quite often it is duplicated in all its essential elements. A mother deserts her children, goes her way, and pays no attention to their welfare. Years later she comes back. Meanwhile the deserted children have found a place in the affections of people capable of caring for them and more than willing to continue. Nevertheless she seeks to take them away. There is some incidental talk of the "sacredness of mother love." In the circumstances of course such talk must be classified as bosh. It is not mother love that incites the abandonment of offspring. The capacity of a mother guilty of abandonment, to make amends later, may reasonably be doubted. The only matter for the court to consider is the welfare of the wards, that of the mother not figuring at all. Her quality had been demonstrated; she had been tested, and had failed.

MILLIONS ILLITERATE

As the result of research, the declaration is made that there are ten million illiterates in the United States. Another ten million are classed as so lacking in education as to be near-illiterates. That this is a shameful showing, that its continuance would be a reflection upon average intelligence, are propositions in support of which no argument needs be made.

On the part of adults sufficiently endowed mentally to be amenable to educational influences, inability to read is a crime. It may be the crime of the individual; certainly it is the crime of the community that permits such destruction of potentially useful citizenship. The densely ignorant man, incapable of knowing what he sees printed in book or paper, cannot be a useful citizen. As to his own success in life, he is hopelessly weighted. He is handicapped as surely as though a blind contestant in a hurdle race.

It does seem that with school facilities provided for the young, and attendance made compulsory, illiteracy must steadily grow less. At the same time many who have reached the voting age are obliged to accept on faith the ballot that is thrust into their hands. The theory that voters of this class could have the judgment to vote wisely is wholly untenable. To permit them to vote is a mistake. At least the small penalty represented by such deprivation ought to be imposed.

When a man or woman is found to be unable to read, sound public policy would require that the offender be sentenced to learn to read if capable of learning, and that incapacity be determined by rigid tests.

RULES ABOUT EATING

Berlin doctors are said to be condemning the practice of omitting breakfast from the hour usually set aside for that meal. The theory that the practice was beneficial had been broadcasted, and many had accepted it. Perhaps in individual cases the results were not hurtful. Some people eat too much habitually, and a respite does good to their digestive systems. The individual who works either with mind or body needs sustaining food. There is no hour of the day when the normal body, accustomed to exercise, is more in need of sustenance than after a night's rest. Awakening with the stomach empty, and engaging forthwith in toil of any sort, is to subject the body to a strain against which it would be fortified by a meal of reasonable proportions. The laborer who went to the digging of a ditch without first partaking of breakfast, would be a wreck before noon. The mental worker, requiring less food, still is being unfair to himself when he tries to subsist without food. If he eats breakfast at home, by the time that he reaches his office, the digestive process has proceeded so far that the performance of his regular task is not likely to interfere with it.

Those who eat breakfast may without discomfort or danger go without lunch, or with a very light lunch. That is, some of them find this to be the case. Others cannot with safety do so, as between breakfast and an evening dinner, they become faint, possibly so losing appetite as to be unable to eat when the dinner hour arrives.

It is useless, however, to lay down a general rule. The mature person who has not learned what his food requirements are, has learned nothing of experience, and is not likely to learn anything through the counsel of the diet expert.

Women of Los Angeles are soon to begin erection of an athletic club building costing a million and a half. They conceived the idea themselves, and by their own efforts obtained the necessary funds. They are to be congratulated on their enterprise and independence.

Even a professor of mathematics is seldom able to figure a woman's age correctly.

Many a girl who believes that she is too good to do housework believes that her mother isn't.

When a girl doesn't tell her mother of a man who tried to kiss her it's a sign he succeeded.

One kind of dark secret is the method employed by a bleached blond in keeping her hair light.

"TINKERITIS"

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

No, it isn't a new disease. It is something that too few people get, and that all unattached folk should be compelled by law to acquire.

A person who has an active case of "tinkeritis" is seldom meddlesome, almost never actively unhappy, has no time to gossip and is usually welcome in the average household. Glory hallelujah.

Recently I had a house guest with an active case of the affection. In odd moments he painted the porch, enameled an old dresser and made it presentable, upholstered two chairs to match my living room color scheme, rehung some screen doors, looked over the plumbing, showed me how to clean the spots off my suede shoes with steel wool, treated a plant in the garden that was suffering with mealy bug and sandpapered the nose of "Lizzie Ford Lindsey" before painting it into pristine shininess with a pint of some stuff he got from a man at the garage.

In addition to this he found time to fall in love, post himself on the roads and by-paths of California; become familiar with chop suey and give the family some much needed financial advice.

And all because he loved to tinker. That man will never be a lonely, desolate old person given to solitary walks and reminiscences. He'll be too busy tinkering on all the things that happen to be around. Every time he goes on a mission he'll save his host the price of his board and keep, jack up the general atmosphere of the place, reduce plumbing bills and create general and specific happiness.

Today I took lunch with a woman who also had a bad case of "tinkeritis." It first manifested itself in the rejuvenation of her hand and assisted of an old house which she leased for a song. When she got through using asphalt paint diluted with kerosene, hanging dainty white curtains and repapering the interior with odds and ends which she picked up at a downtown shop, the house looked so dressed up that she subtlety let me know that she was paying and moved into another to repeat the rejuvenation process.

That was two years ago. Today she is in comfortable circumstances, is building on her own property, and drives a spick and span car which she can take apart and put together again. "Tinkeritis" did it. It isn't, of course, but with diligence it may be acquired.

A hint to the wise is a gift from the gods, a proverb both new and true.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Sometimes I am compelled to take a train for the Big Town. On one side of the track is a series of muddy meadows speckled with advertising signs. They do not mean anything to me. Just vari-colored blots. But the other day my idle eye caught a miss in one sign. It read:

"Fashionpleated Socks."

That isn't the exact name, of course. The point is that the sign-painter had omitted the "r" from fashion. I sat up in my chair and watched for the next one to discover whether the advertiser habitually spelled "fashion" without an f. By the time I was satisfied that it was the painter's fault I had the title of the socks imbedded in my memory. Next day I bought some Fashionpleated Socks.

While I was looking for the f another painter's curio caught me. For seven years I have seen a sign on a factory announcing that some one within was a manufacturer of something. I could not tell under rack and thumb whether who or what. But an inspired painter had announced a change in the management by tacking a brilliantly white and under-sized s to the tail of manufacturer, and then canting it at an acute angle. I got the name of that firm and what it manufactures before the train had passed by. Probably I will never forget it.

Here's the moral. Most of us do the ordinary things of life in an ordinary way. We spend fashion with an f. If we add an s to manufacturer we paint the whole sign over and make it sweet and regular and commonplace. Therefore we do not get the full value of our exertion. We are rut-followers. We are standardized and interchangeable. Any one who comes along can fill our place, just as we can fill the place of any other in our line. One of the biggest and most human men I know said once that he did not know one clerk from another in his outer office.

"Why should I?" he asked. "They're all alike."

He wasn't "alike" when he was a clerk. That's why he is the boss today.

And nowhere was he happier than at the houses of the great surgeons and physicians who interested themselves in his strange disease. When the Little Billees of this world fall ill, the great surgeons and physicians (like the great singers and musicians) do better for them, out of mere love and kindness, than for the princes of the earth, who pay them thousand-guinea fees and load them with honors.

And of all these notable London houses none was pleasanter than that of Cornelius the great sculptor, and Little Billee was such a favorite in that house that he was able to take his friends Taffy and the Laird there the very day they came to London.

First of all they dined together at a delightful little Franco-Italian porthouse near Leicester Square, where they had bouillabaisse (imagine the Laird's delight), and spaghetti, and a poulet roti, which is such a different affair from a roast fowl and salad, which Taffy was allowed to make and mix himself; and they all smoked just where they sat, the moment they had swallowed their food—as had been their way in the good old Paris days.

That dinner was a happy one for Taffy and the Laird, with their Little Billee apparently unchanged—as demonstrative, as genial, and as carefree as ever, and with no swagger to speak of, and with so many things to talk about that were new to them, and of such delightful interest! They also had much to say—but they didn't say very much about Paris, for fear of waking up Heaven knows what sleeping dogs!

And every now and again, in the midst of all this pleasant fore-gathering and communion of long-parted friends, the pangs of Little Billee's miserable mind-malady would shoot through him like poisoned arrows.

He would catch himself thinking how fat and tussy and serious about trifles Taffy had become; and what a shiftless, feckless, futile duffer was the Laird; and how greedy they both were, and how red and coarse their ears and gills and cheeks grew as they fed, and how shiny their faces; and how little he would care, try as he might, if they both fell down dead under the table! And this would make him behave more carelessly to them, more genially and demonstratively than ever—for he knew it was all a grewsome physical ailment of his own, which he could no more help than a cataract in his eye!

Then, catching sight of his own face and form in a mirror, he would curse himself for a puny, misbegotten shrimp, as impotent as a eunuch, and as good as dead, as the herculean Taffy or the burly Laird of Cockpen, than sixpence north of half-pence; a wretched little overated follower of a poor trivial craft—a mere light amuseur. For what did pictures matter, or whether they were good or bad, except to the triflers who painted them, the dealers who sold them, the idle, uneducated, purse-proud fools who bought them and stuck them up on their walls because they were told!

And he felt that if a dynamite shell were beneath the table where they sat, and its fuse were smoking under their very noses, he would neither wish to warn his friends nor move himself. He didn't care a d—!

And all this made him so lively and brilliant in his talk so fascinating and droll and witty, that Taffy and the Laird wondered at the improvement success and the experience of life had wrought in him, and marvelled at the happiness of his lot, and almost found it in their warm, affectionate hearts to feel a touch of envy.

Oddly enough, in a brief flash of silence, "entre la poltre et la fromage," they heard a foreigner at an adjoining table (one of a very noisy group) exclaim: "Mais quand je vous dis que j'ai l'entendement, moi, la Svengali! et meme qu'elle a chante l'improvisation de Chopin absolument comme si c'était un piano qu'on jouait! voyons!"

"Farouche! la bonne blague!" said another—and then the conversation became so noisily general it was no good listening any more.

"Svengali! how funny that name should turn up! I wonder what's become of our Svengali, by-the-way?" observed Taffy.

"I remember his playing Chopin's Improvisation," said Little Billee; "what a singular coincidence!"

There were to be more coincidences that night; it never rains but it pours!

So our three friends finished their coffee and liqueur up, and went to Cornelius'—three in a hand-som—den Hill, a house of many windows; and whichever window he looks out of, he sees his own garden and very little else. In spite of his eighty years, he works as hard as ever, and his hand has lost but little of its cunning. But he no longer gives those splendid parties that made him almost as famous a host as he was an artist.

When his beautiful wife died he shut himself up from the world; and now he never stirs out of his house and grounds except to fulfil his duties at the Royal Academy and dine once a year with the Queen.

It was very different in the early sixties. There was no pleasanter or more festive house than his in London, winter or summer—no lordlier host than he—no more irresistible hostesses than Lady Cornelius and her lovely daughters, and if ever music had a right to call itself divine, it was there you heard it—on late Saturday nights during the London season—when the foreign birds of song come over to reap their harvest in London Town.

It was on one of the most brilliant of these Saturday nights that Taffy and the Laird, chaperoned by Little Billee, made their debut at Mecklen Lodge, and were received at the door of the immense music-room by a tall, powerful man with splendid eyes and a gray beard, and a small velvet cap on his head—and by a Greek matron so beautiful and stately and magnificently attired that they felt inclined to sink them on their bended knees as in the presence of some overwhelming Eastern royalty—and were only prevented from doing so, perhaps, by the simple, sweet, and cordial graciousness of her welcome.

And whom should they be shaking hands with next but Antony, Lorrimer, and the Great—with each a beard and mustache of nearly five years' growth!

But they had no time for much exuberant greeting, for there was a sudden piano crash—and then an immediate silence, as though for pious to drop—and Signor Giuglini and the wondrous maiden Adelina Patti sang the Miserere out of Signor Verdi's most famous opera—to the delight of all but a few very superior ones who had just read Mendelssohn's letters (or misread them) and despised Italian music; and thought cheaply of "mere virtuosity," either vocal or instrumental.

Then, very late, a tall, good-looking, swarthy foreigner came in, with a roll of music in his hands, and his entrance made quite a stir; you heard all round, "Here's the Glorioso!" or "Beco Glorioso!" or "Volei Glorioso!" till Glorioso got on your nerves. And beautiful ladies, ambassadors, female celebrities of all kinds, fluttered up to him and cooed and fawned;—as Svengali would have said, "Prizessen, Comtessen, Serene English Altesse!"—and they soon forgot their Highness and their Serenity!

For with very little pressing Glorioso stood up on the platform, with his accompanist by his side at the piano, and in his hands a sheet of music, at which he never looked. He looked at the beautiful ladies, and ogled and smiled; and from his scarcely parted, moist, thick, bearded lips, which he always licked before singing, there issued the most ravishing sounds that had ever been heard from throat of man or woman or boy! He could sing both high and low and soft and loud, and the frivolous were bewitched, as was only to be expected; but even the earnestest of all, caught, surprised, astounded, shaken, tickled, teased, harrowed, tortured, tantalized, agitated, seduced, demoralized, corrupted into naturalness, forgot to dissemble their delight.

Anyhow, his voice got into Little Billee's head more than any wine, and the boy could talk of nothing else for days and weeks; and was so exuberant in his expressions of delight and gratitude that the great singer took a real fancy to him (especially when he was told that this fervent boyish admirer was one of the greatest of English painters); and as a mark of his esteem, privately confided to him after supper that every century two human intelligences were born—only two a male and a female; and that he, Glorioso, was the representative "male rosignol of this so-disant dix-neuvieme siecle."

"I can well believe that! And the female, your mate that should be—la rosignolle. If there is such a word?" inquired Little Billee.

"Ah! mon ami . . . It was Alboni till la petite Adelina Patti came out a year or two ago; and now it is la Svengali!"

"La Svengali!"

"Oul, mon ty! You will hear her some day—at vous m'en direz des nouvelles!"

"Why, you don't mean to say that she's got a better voice than Madame Alboni?"

"Mon ami, an apple is an excellent thing—until you have tried a peach! Her voice is that of Alboni is as a peach to an apple—I give you my word of honor! but bah! the voice is a detail. It's what she does with it—it's incredible! It gives one cold all down the back! it drives you mad! it makes you weep hot tears by the spoonful! Ah! the tear, mon ty! tenez! I can draw everything but that! Ca n'est pas dans mes cordes! I can only madden with love! But la Svengali! . . . And then, in the middle of it all, prout! . . . she makes you laugh! Ah! le beau rire! faire rire avec des larmes pleins les yeux—voilà qui me passe! . . . Mon ami, when I heard her it made me swear that even I would never try to sing any more—it seemed too absurd and I kept my word for a month at least—and you know, je sais ce que je vauz, moi!"

"You are talking of la Svengali, I bet," said Signor Sparta.

"Oul, parbleu! You have heard her?"

"Yes—at Vienna last winter," rejoined the greatest singing-master in the world. "J'en suis fou! he-las! I thought I could teach a woman how to sing till I heard that blackguard Svengali's pupil. He has married her, they say!"

"That blackguard Svengali!" exclaimed Little Billee. . . . "why, that must be a Svengali I knew in Paris—a famous pianist; a friend of mine!"

"That's the man! also one famous crapule (sauf vol respect): his real name is Adler; his mother was a Polish singer; and he was a pupil at the Leipzig Conservatorio. But he's an immense artist, and a great singing-master, to teach a woman like that! and such a woman! belle comme un ange—mais bete comme un pot. I tried to talk to her—all she can say is 'la wahl,' or 'deich,' or 'heln,' or 'soh!' not a word of English or French or Italian, though she sings them, oh! but divinely! It is 'il bel canto' come back to the world after a hundred years. . . ."

"But what voice is it?" asked Little Billee.

"Every voice a mortal woman can have—three octaves—four! and of such a quality that people who can't tell one tune from another cry with pleasure at the mere sound of it directly they hear her! Just like anybody else. Every-thing that Paganini could do with his violin she does with her voice—only better—and what a voice! un vrai baume!"

"Now I don't mind getting sat you are sneaking of la Svengali," said Herr Kreutzer, the famous composer, joining in. "Quelle merveille, hein? I heard her in St. Petersburg, at ze Vinter Balace. Ze women all vent mad, and pulled off their beards and diamonds and gave zem to her—vent town on zeir knees and gried and gised her hands. She dit not say vun vort! She dit not eten schmilfe! Ze men schmilfe in ze gorners, and looked at ze pictures, and tsempled—efen I, Johann Kreutzer, efen ze Emperor!"

"You're joking," said Little Billee.

"My vrent, I neffer choke ven I talk about singing. You vill hear her zum tag yourself, and you vill acree vize me zat zere are two classes of beible who sing. In ze vun class, la Svengali; in ze oozzer, all ze oozzer zingers!"

"And does she sing good music?"

"I don't know. All music is koot ven she zings it. I forket ze zong; I can only sink of ze zinger. Any koot zinger can zing a beautiful zong and kif beause, I zubboco! But I voot zooner hear la Svengali sing a scale zan anypott else zing ze most beautiful zong in ze vorld—efen vun of my own! Ze is perhaps bow zung ze grate lital Jan zingers of ze last century. It was a lost art, and she has found it; and she must haf pecun to zing before she pecun to schpeak—or else she root not haf haf zat ze time to learn all zat she knows, for she is not yet zirty! She zings in Paris in Ogdeppe, Gott sei dank! and gums here after Christmas to zing at Trury Lane. Chullen kifs her ten sousand bounts!"

"I wonder, now! Why, that must be the woman I heard at Warsaw two years ago—or three," said young Lord Willow. "It was at Count Silozsch's. He'd heard her in the streets, with a tall, black-bearded ruffian, who accompanied her on a guitar, and a little fiddling gypsy fellow. She was a handsome woman, with hair down to her knees, but stupid as an owl. She sang at Silozsch's, and all the fellows went mad and gave her their watches and diamond studs and gold scarf-pins. By gad! never heard or saw anything like it. I don't know much about music myself—couldn't tell 'God Save the Queen' from 'Pop Goes the Weasel.' If the people didn't get up and stand and take their hats off, but I was as mad as the rest—why, I gave her a little German silver vinaigrette I'd just bought for my wife; hanged if I didn't—and I was only just married, you know! It's the peculiar twang of her voice, I suppose!"

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

It is to be regretted that war should have broken out in the movement against the narcotic evil. As much as it is to be regretted, it is totally lacking in the element of surprise.

"Dope" is a vast and growing evil. It constitutes one of the most malignant and potent threats against society. The necessity of curbing the traffic is manifest to everybody.

When any good movement arises, there arises also the professional reformer, who attaches himself to it, makes it his own, and uses it as a source of profit. The man who is always a reformer, and always in quest of a salary for being a reformer, is not a reformer at all. On the contrary he is a nuisance, a handicap, and often no better than the evil he seeks pay for assailing.

Persons who elect to become vice specialists, tracking wickedness to its lair, are likely to become tarred with the same stick that has besmeared the wicked whom they pursue. The late Comstock, perhaps sincere in the beginning, revelled in nastiness.

Public sentiment is against narcotics. The traffic is being fought by the press, the pulpit and the police, all proper agencies. The butters are in butting in for profit. They do not appear in each case to be inspired by high and holy motives.

The death of ex-Governor Markham in Pasadena at the age of 83 brings to mind the fact that a man may for a time be prominent in public affairs, and then pass from sight.

California has acquired many thousands of citizens since Markham retired from office, and to most of these his name hardly had been known. But so quietly had the later years of the former governor been spent, that outside of his immediate circle of friends comparatively few realized that his life had continued through all these years.

Lloyd George since arriving in this country has said that the Hughes plan in relation to German reparations was the best that had been proposed.

This may be embarrassing to the newspapers that have been deriding Hughes as an amateur diplomatist, twisted around the fingers of European statesmen; particularly as these papers tout Lloyd George as the greatest diplomatist of all time.

Chancellor Stresemann has received a word of confidence. Doubtless he will find this cheering, but it leaves him to face a number of problems the solution of which is far from easy.

Theorists are setting forth the benign character of the next war, all of them apparently accepting a next war as a certainty. They are telling of fumes that are to lull the enemy to sleep, after which will be the pleasing possibility of going through his pockets as he dreams.

Other theorists picture the affair as sure to be marked by ruthlessness, including the obliteration of cities and all who dwell therein. Still a third set ought to get busy on the idea that there is to be no next war.

Almost everything that a moving picture actress does outside of her professional work may be ascribed to the desire for publicity. The one who has just killed herself over a shattered "romance" as such affairs are termed, must have had a different motive.

Venice proposes to eradicate the mosquito. This is a style of reform worthy of imitation in every place where the hum of the critter is heard.

The mosquito is a bad neighbor, never in any sense a friend. It presses its little bill with pertinacity, and the prod is loaded up with more poisons than one would expect to find in the laboratory of a germ enthusiast.

One man when asked if the 2-cent gasoline tax was fair, replied that he paid it only because of the law. So far as observation throws any light, no individual ever pays a tax for any other reason.

Apparently another bank has been robbed by bandits. One says "apparently" because sometimes the bandits proved to have been creatures of the imagination of the real thief. However, this job seems to have been highly professional.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

MORNING MANNERS

Manners are always shy at getting up in the morning. Perhaps they are the last of our accomplishments to waken, but surely, whatever the reason, they are conspicuously absent in the general family breakfast gathering.

The children scrambling to be off on time for school, add to the unpleasantness. They are without a shadow of manners before noon!

"Shut up!" snaps Jane.

"Why don't you step on my ear?" growls brother George.

"Can't you remember there's somebody else at the breakfast table beside yourself?" flares big sister.

"I'm striving hard to forget it," retorts Big Brother and having for good humor passes the sugar to his offended sister.

There's something about us that works that way. Once we get a chance to work off a bit of our bad manners in ill-humored speech or deed we feel better immediately and the day takes on a more hopeful glow. We begin to thaw out and our manners steal back over by one like guilty sheep that had gone astray.

There is none among us who has not been guilty and who has not wished and hoped for a happier morning mood. "Perhaps," we muse, "the children will manage better. Their manners may hold over until the morning. Perhaps!"

For the children's sakes, let's hope so. It is as hard to be bad mannered as it is to bear the bad manners of those who wreak them upon us.

What can we do to prop the children's morning manners? Begin the night before. Send them to bed on time and in the right mood. Watch them fold and arrange their clothes so that they will be easy to find and put on in the morning. That's a big part of the battle.

Call them on time and see that they get their turn in the bath room. Bathroom etiquette has a great deal to do with the good humor and consequent good manners of the family in the mornings.

The person who monopolizes the bathroom for shaving or hair-dressing or private laundry work is an outcast and an alien, and should be dealt with accordingly. Also the person who splashes about like a mislaid whale and flaps out leaving his watery wake to fluster the next comer.

Who wouldn't be snorty at finding the tub one-third full of milky water, with a dreary washrag floating about in it, or a hair knot, with a bunch of hairpins sticking in it, afloat on the edge of the lavatory?

Morning manners are always bad, always have been bad, but perhaps we might do a little toward improving them even if it were breakfasting alone when the mood was too bad or staying up all night and prolonging the genial manner of the mellow hour! Anyway try to make it a bit easier for the children.

GREAT DISPLAY OF ORATORY TAKES COUNCIL'S TIME

Our Sam Waxés Brilliant and Very, Very Tedious

The hearing which the Glendale City Council granted on Thursday night to the Community Auto Camp at Riverdale and San Fernando road, and the Glendale Auto Camp, to show cause why their permits should not be revoked, consumed about three hours and proved a comedy that will linger in the memories of an audience that filled every seat and then some, and that was composed largely of residents in the section in which the camps are situated.

Attorneys Anspach and Dwight Stephenson had stellar roles, the first as attorney for defendants, Mr. and Mrs. Hatfield, the second representing citizens who have complained and suffered from the annoyance of the camps. The audience served as chorus and Councilman Sam Davis, in his most argumentative vein, was the leading soloist, being on his feet a good share of the time. He wanted to make all the motions and plaintively reproached his colleagues when robbed of the privilege, threatening not to vote. Then they offered to withdraw their motions and let him voice them. Mayor Robinson contented himself with the duties of presiding officer, occasionally volunteering an explanation or caustic comment. Councilman Hall limited his activities to seconding motions, amendments and withdrawals, his eyes twinkling over Sam's reactions. Councilman Horn gave a good imitation of a faithful official committed to a righteous cause about to do his duty nobly but was not proof against the sentimental slumps of Councilmen Davis and Kimlin, anxious to protect the interests of defendants.

Proceedings opened with a petition from Dr. Kaemmerling, city health officer, for the revocation of the auto camp permits on the ground that they are and for two years have been public nuisances, filthy, unsanitary and a reproach to the city. After Inspector Sweet and Chief of Police Fraser had corroborated his statements, reinforced by those of Councilmen Hall, Horn, Davis and Kimlin, who have visited the camp, Attorney Anspach was given opportunity to earn his fee and rather brilliantly made the best of a poor case, though frequently interrupted by councilmen and city officials with challenges of the truth of some of

LEGION NEWS

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—From all points of the western coast, from Canada to the Mexican line, thousands of veterans who fought with the 91st (Wild West) division will pour into San Francisco next Saturday and Sunday to revive memories of the Meuse Argonne offensive, which spelled the death knell of the Kaiser's ambition of world rule. Once again the familiar slogan—"Powder River!—Let 'Er Buck!" will re-echo through the streets of the city as these heroes, who formed the Pacific Coast contribution to the American Expeditionary Forces meet to renew friendships formed in camp and on the battlefields of France and Belgium.

The reunion which is expected to be the largest ever given by a veteran organization in this country will serve as a tremendous prologue to the American Legion national convention which convenes in San Francisco next week.

While elaborate plans have been made for their entertainment ample opportunity will be afforded these "Powder River" boys to meet again in small groups with their "buddies" to swap yarns reminiscent of the days of the olive drab.

The outstanding feature of this great get-together is to be the huge divisional banquet in the Civic Auditorium next Saturday evening when 4,000 veterans, representing all units of the 91st division, sit down to a feast prepared by the best French chefs of San Francisco. The committee in charge have made preparations for the largest indoor dinner ever served on the Pacific Coast.

Entertainment of the highest order furnished by local theatres will be interspersed with special stunts by versatile veterans who were members of the Ninety-First.

Ranking army and navy officers, as well as prominent public officials, will be guest of honor on this occasion.

All former 91st division men are requested to communicate with James I. Herz, secretary, 353 Bush street, San Francisco, for full particulars.

his assertions. He set forth the harassing uncertainties of his clients because a promised ordinance strictly defining their obligations had not been passed, nor had written instructions been received from their harsh critics, the inspectors and police officers. Their lease, which has over three years to run with forfeiture of buildings erected if permit is revoked, was dwelt upon and an appeal made for another chance and more time.

Meanwhile copious notes were being taken by the shorthand reporter whom Attorney Anspach announced he had engaged to make a record of these "quasi judicial" proceedings and for whom he demanded a table. She was escorted by him to the inner circle within the platform railing where "Art" Sherbourne surrendered his seat after wildly looking around for another chair. None being in sight he made a gallant retreat to the rear of the room where he secured a window seat perch and a section of the Sunday school piano for a desk.

Attorney Stephenson apologized for inability to equal the brilliant oratory of the opposing attorney, dwelt on the relief due neighboring property owners suffering from the nuisance and depreciation of their holdings, urging councilmen to revoke and do it now. He was sustained by "Slim" Johnston and by Mr. Case, the latter living across the street from the Community Auto Camp.

Face to face with action, however, the council wavered. Whenever they showed signs of stiffening, the audience hopefully applauded. Their tender regard for the welfare and property interests of defendants were set forth in speeches and the possibility that the owner of the property leased by the Hatfields, who was referred to by Councilman Davis as "Old Man Benjamin," might in some way learn of the hearing and refuse to dicker with defendants for the value of their buildings if the permit should be revoked, was discussed, and Davis told how the aforesaid "old man" had nearly gotten the best of him in an auto deal. The possibility that an injunction might be sought was another bugaboo until assurances were had from three attorneys that a legislative body is not subject to injunction for anything it may have in mind to do.

About 11 o'clock, Lloyd Wilson, who has been attending civic meetings for twenty-five consecutive nights and was anxious to get some sleep, boiled over and said things to the council such as: "You have a lot of people here from the south end of town who are losing thousands of dollars because of this thing. This has been going on for more than a year. You are not backing up your health department nor your chief of police. You have backed up your chamber of commerce and you know it. You are making a mistake in not being solid and revoking that auto camp permit."

He was overwhelmed with reproaches for his unwarranted attack when they were about to do things and then was put a much debated motion made by Councilman Horn "that the license for the Community Auto Camp be revoked to take effect thirty days from today." It carried unanimously. Later the permit of the Glendale Auto Camp for which the present owner holds no license, was also revoked.

Wherever there are Kiddies there Should be ICE!

You cannot expect happy minds and healthy little bodies in growing children unless they get pure, wholesome food, with nutritive qualities unimpaired. And a great many foods positively cannot be kept pure and wholesome unless they are kept in the cold, even temperature of a refrigerator.

In such foods—milk, for instance—germs multiply rapidly when the temperature reaches 50 degrees, and the food loses much of its value, even before it actually spoils.

There is one safe rule to follow when there are children in the house—keep your refrigerator well filled with ice every month in the year.

GLENDALE HIGH FOOTBALLERS MEET SANTA BARBARA ELEVEN HERE TOMORROW AFTERNOON

Saints Have Fast Open Field Team and Will Give Dynamiters Great Game. Glendale Team Is In Fine Condition

Football fans of this city will tomorrow view the fastest tanbark struggle staged here this season. Coach Normal Hayhurst's Glendale high school eleven will take on the Santa Barbara high aggregation on the local field at 2:30 o'clock. From all indications the game will be a great one, as both teams have showed themselves to be strong in their early contests.

The Saints are said to have a fast team and to specialize on the open style of game, with plenty of kicking and passing. They are not so heavy, and do not concentrate on line charging like they do on aerial work. Recently they landed Oxnard a 27 to 0 defeat. The Glendale gridgers downed Oxnard to the tune of 46 to 0 a short time ago.

The two teams look fairly well matched, and will put up a real battle, the best displayed hereabouts for some time. Last Tuesday Glendale defeated Hollywood high 12 to 0, and since that time the team has been working hard in preparation for the Santa Barbara game. Having defeated Oxnard, Fillmore, Van Nuys and Hollywood, the Dynamiters look exceptionally strong at the present writing.

Cyril Walton, who has been out for some time with an injured shoulder, will be back in uniform shortly. In spite of all gossip to the contrary, Hayhurst denies that his team averages more than 155 pounds, and to prove his contention showed his official weight sheets. It must be admitted that the writer was considerably surprised to find that only two or three men on the team weighed more than 150 pounds, and that the heaviest player was under 170, and that two men in the scales at a figure less than 135 each. These are "Bud" Elliott, 132-pound quarter, and Horri, 123-pound end.

Earlier in the season it was thought that Hayhurst would have difficulty with the center berth. Now it appears that the pivot position will give him little or no trouble this year. Two able centers, Zaun and Phillips, have been uncovered by the local mentor.

One week from today Glendale

FOOTBALL SEASON OPENS WIDE IN THE EAST

Many Fast Games Slated For Eastern Grid-irons Tomorrow

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 (United Press).—While the turf has been more or less chopped up for two weeks with football cleats, the young season will let loose its first real punch tomorrow all over the country.

Tested in at least one, and in most cases in two preliminary games, the major elements of the whole country will get their first touch of real action on a day's schedule which is crammed with interesting games.

For such an early date it is an unusual schedule that will provide in one day:

West Virginia vs. Pittsburgh.
Notre Dame vs. the Army.
Princeton vs. Georgetown.
Vanderbilt vs. Michigan.
Colgate vs. Ohio State.
West Virginia Wesleyan vs. the Navy.
Alabama vs. Syracuse.
Georgia vs. Yale.

FOOTBALL STRATEGY

Football strategy is a peculiar thing. We do not mean the strategy the teams use on the field to win games, but the strategy the coaches use before the season begins and in the early practice games in displaying their wares to the public. Some of them try to kid the fans along by telling them that they have a wonderful team when in reality they have nothing. Others give out the hope that they have nothing when, if the truth were known, their teams may stack up as remarkable aggregations of football players. Still others tell what they have, no more and no less, and don't try to kid the public.

The first type of coach mentioned has several reasons for his tactics. Perhaps he is in a town that will not support a loser. If he comes out with a statement that his team is the bunk, he will draw very little support from the box office standpoint. In some places such tactics are a necessity. Some coaches of this type use these tactics to scare the others and to spread the word to look out for their institution. Such strategy gains nothing, for when the truth becomes known the coach is made the laughing stock of the conference.

The second class is typified by Gloomy Gus Henderson of U. S. C. This crepe hanging is with him an annual affair. He does not fool anyone by telling them that his team is no good, for he does it every year. The main point in favor of this type of strategy is the idea of keeping the real strength of the team a secret during the practice season.

Henderson has not allowed his men to show their stuff as far as the season has progressed. He has let them take it easy and created an impression that his team is rather weak. He has the fans guessing. They do not know what U. S. C. has. This type of strategy shows real generalship and anyone who can consistently put it off over year after year, as Henderson has done is quite a strategist.

Andy Smith is an example of the third class of coaches. He uses no strategy. The only tactics he has are those used on the field. If his team is good he says so. If it is rotten he says so. Popular opinion does not bother him. He goes right on producing wonder teams when the scribes say the days of the wonder team are gone. He holds back nothing in the early games but lets the boys go to it as hard as they can.

All three types of strategy have their uses. They all win championships. They depend for their effectiveness upon the coaches who execute them.

With the present teams, the features are not confined to the team before and after the game. The cadets have a really great team, Notre Dame always has a real football game as well as a show is provided. It will take a mighty fine Notre Dame team to beat the Cadets this year.

BABE RUTH IN FULL WORLD'S SERIES GLORY

Teams Enter Third Game Fairly Even; Neither Seems Favorite

With one game for each the Yankees and Giants, the 1923 World's Series stood even before today's game. Feeling seems to be running high, and the result of today's encounter is the cause of considerable argument. Neither team stands favorite to cop today.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Babe Ruth crossed with mighty tread yesterday the threshold of world's series glory that has been barred to him for two years. Driving out two thundering home-run thrusts in successive innings, a feat unparalleled in championship baseball history, Ruth was the dynamo in the powerful attack that enabled the New York Yankees to turn the tables on the Giants, capture the second game of the series by a score of 4 to 2, and square the count with the world's titleholders in the 1923 struggle for diamond supremacy.

The second class is typified by Gloomy Gus Henderson of U. S. C. This crepe hanging is with him an annual affair. He does not fool anyone by telling them that his team is no good, for he does it every year. The main point in favor of this type of strategy is the idea of keeping the real strength of the team a secret during the practice season.

Perseverance had its own reward at Washington Park yesterday. Vernon, by hanging tenaciously onto the old adage, "everything to him that waits," finally stumbled into a victory over the Angels, 9 to 4. It was the first time the Tigers' hearts had swollen with a winning thrill since old Doc Cook lost track of a coquetish pole in the north.

The count in the aftermath series now stands Angels, 1; Vernon, 1. A double header will be pulled off this afternoon, upon the result of which, thousands of local fans' auras will hang in pent-up expectancy until the shades of evening crawl in.

SOUTHERN CALIF. CONFERENCE OPEN SEASON TOMORROW

Caltech at Whittier, Oxy and Redlands at Patterson Field

Southern California conference football will open tomorrow with two hot tilts. Occidental, early favorite for the conference honors, will take on the Redlands tanbarkers at Patterson park, while Caltech and Whittier will meet on the latter's gridiron.

It is not anticipated that Occidental will have much difficulty with the Bulldogs. The Tigers have shown in their pre-season games that they are perhaps the best balanced team in the conference. Last year Oxy beat Redlands to the tune of 29 to 0, and this year the Tiger eleven is even stronger. The Occidental frosh will tangle with Dinuba high school in the preliminary tilt.

The real fight of the day will be staged at Whittier. Caltech is considered as a likely contender for the championship, while Whittier, at first thought the "weak sister" of the conference, has displayed enough stuff of late to make the other teams look to their laurels. The Quakers beat the U. S. S. Arizona by an overwhelming score, and also handed Loyola a nice upset. Caltech lost to U. S. C., but put up a fine game. Injuries in the Loyola game have handicapped Whittier, but it is expected that the lineup tomorrow will be as usual. Neither team is counted favorite at present.

LEGION MEN ARE MAKING GOOD AS GAME WARDENS

BOISE, Idaho, Oct. 12.—The opening of the grouse season in Idaho has caused employment of a large group of men, many of the members of the American Legion as game wardens. The former service men are particularly desirable, according to state officials, because "they understand what discipline is, and are willing to undergo hardships of long trips into the mountains in order to protect the game, fish and birds."

SHOES, PAST AND SLEEP IS A REAL PRESENT AND TO COME

Women Too Wedded to Dainty Footwear to Forego It

Fashion today does not need to go back to clogs or patterns or the stilt-like chopine, but she does not disdain to burrow among the relics of the past for some of her most elaborate and exaggerated styles of today, says Fashionable Dress. The openwork on sport shoes for example is the result of cutting off the folds of the first leather shoe; the elaborate colored gores and straps of the present season were far outdone in "the gentle craft" of the fourteenth century. The "fall" of fringed leather, the tongue, every device of lacing was originated centuries ago. Let us be thankful that fashion stopped delving in the past right there though, for the pointed toe was developed by the dandies of the day into the utmost absurdity. Artificial toes six inches long, pointed, upcurved, and fantastically ornamented, were added. Even the famous lace rosette which Pola Negri wears originated in 1700 and it had a real jewel in the center then.

Just what is fashion going to do for the coming season? She may of course change her mind in some minor matters pertaining to foot-wear styles but the fundamentals seem to be pretty well settled for the winter at least, and first and foremost comes confirmation of the prediction that women will never again go back to ugly or even commonplace foot-wear. Even the possibility of the long skirts will have no influence upon this point. Women have found that they can have plenty, daintily and becoming shoes for every possible sort of dress—and they are going to have them.

Two features stand out rather prominently in dress shoes for the coming season—the favor shown to long ornamental effects over the instep—and the decidedly shorter vamp in effect at least. Buckles are large and long, and are set up, not crosswise as they have been. There seems to be a good natured rivalry between rhinestone and cut steel, and a Normal physical living and resultant beauty may be reduced to four terms—food, drink, exercise, sleep. When these are properly applied to the normal man or woman, properly clad, the result means health and beauty.

The girl or woman who would be vigorous mentally and physically is being warned to give more serious thought to the conditions in which she sleeps and under which she sleeps. For one thing she is told that retiring soon after a heavy meal will result in anything but refreshing slumber for the stomach needs several hours in which to complete its digestive work and is in no condition for complete repose until this work is done.

For those inclined to insomnia a brisk walk before going to bed is recommended, or a cold bath followed by brisk rubbing with a coarse towel.

A most common cause of sleeplessness is lack of ventilation. The bed should be placed where it will get plenty of air from open windows and the bed covering should be sufficient for warmth but not oppressively heavy.

Lying upon the back in sleep was formerly thought to be an inducing cause of nightmare, but now doctors are recommending it and also on a level with the body, without a pillow, the reason given being that the spine is twisted and the muscles of the neck strained by a pillow. Sagging face muscles and double chins are credited to high pillows which throw the head forward and let the chin flesh drop in folds.

preference of the actual buckle over that made of beads worked on a foundation.

Another feature which may be only a fad, but which appears on many smart shoes is embroidery in effects of buckles and bows. Many satin slippers have the embroidery in a simulated buckle or bow.

TREND OF FASHION

By HELEN MERRILL EMERY

It is quite evident that jeune fille fashions continue to exploit the picturesque lines of the so-called period frocks, those tight waisted, wide skirted models which slim youth wears with such immitable grace. And the materials of the winter lend themselves so well to these modes. Crisp taffetas and failles are admirable back grounds for delicate traceries of metal embroideries, cloth of silver gleams through innumerable flounces of lace and tulle, gorgeous metal brocades fall into lines made famous by the costumes of Spanish dancers, and vivid velvets glow with a brilliancy in keeping with the gay insouciance of youthful wearers.

Delightfully Youthful Frock of Cloth of Silver.

One finds in these frocks a tend-

THOUGHTS ARE THE KEY TO REAL BEAUTY

Florence Nash Thinks They Cannot Be Bought in Bottles

Florence Nash, who has been playing the part of the Montague girl in the stage production of "Merton of the Movies" on the New York boards, believes that beauty is more than skin deep and cannot be bought in bottles at either the drug store or the beauty parlor. In a recent interview she told a magazine writer:

"Yes, I honestly believe that we do. That is, I believe that the things that are inside of us are far more important than the color of our skin or cold-cream—things like that. If a person thinks lovely thoughts, the beauty and serenity of their thoughts will shine through. If their features are perfect and their thoughts are cheap and tawdry, that will show, too. Even very young people reflect their inward thoughts and, as we grow older, these inward expressions show more and more. The lines on our faces are really character lines—they are beautiful or ugly. They are not accidental. They are the result of our inward selves peeping through."

ency to use much metal ribbon and lace and working with these, designers have achieved effects of much beauty and charm.

In the frock illustrated a rather conventional design is followed in the arrangement of different widths of blue and silver ribbon. These are sewed in the form of stripes to a back ground of cloth of silver. The straight unrelieved bodice has, instead of shoulder straps, small ruffles of silver lace.

Quite as interesting is another frock designed for a bridesmaid. It has a plain straight bodice with a shallow bateau neckline, and a long full skirt shirred for several inches below the natural waistline. This opens in front, displaying an adorable petticoat of silver embroidered lace which is in charming contrast to the orchid tints of the taffeta.

FRESHNESS AND CLEANLINESS AS CHARMS

Baroness de Souiny Says They Are Essential to Success in Business

"Freshness and cleanliness are charms which the woman who succeeds will never neglect," said the Baroness de Souiny, to a magazine correspondent who interviewed her recently. "And they are not easy to attain, either. It requires real discipline to be a good business woman—and a neat one at the same time. There is a tendency to neglect clothes at the end of a tiring day. But the morning comes around in a twinkling—and the woman who has not put into practice the old adage: 'a stitch in time saves nine,' finds herself in a mad scramble to start the day."

"The woman who permits herself and her clothes to be all tagends reflects a certain disorder of thinking, of course, and no business wants that. I know of a brilliant young saleswoman who lost an attractive position because she always had wisps of stringy hair hanging down like tails about her neck, her collars were always soiled and matted, her hats badly battered, and her finger-nails broken. The company was afraid that customers would think the firm as shabby as she."

The Baroness is one of the upper class of Russian women who lost all in the revolution and fled to New York where she is utilizing her business talents as head of the women's department in the Durant corporation which manufactures automobiles and conducts a banking business in connection. She supervises a large corps of saleswomen and investigates opportunities for working up trade with women consumers. Her offices are in New York but her work covers the continent.

POISE AND CARRIAGE
Here is instruction which one beauty magazine gives for attaining correct poise and carriage: "Always stand on the front or ball of the foot, and keep the knees straight. Carry yourself so that a string extended downward from your chest would reach the floor without touching another part of your body. Do not push your head forward and do not be in a hurry so that you will waddle along like a little duckling with no grace or carriage."

Miss Laura Harlan, Social Secretary to Mrs. Harding Retained by Mrs. Coolidge

Miss Harlan, who will continue as social secretary at the White House.

VITAMINES ARE ALL IMPORTANT IN DIET

Raw Milk Richer in These Factors Than Any Other Food

Real beauty specialists now are almost without exception health faddists and it is fortunate for women who seek to be beautiful that they are. Vitamines as important elements in diet come in for considerable attention. Ethel Paxson has this to say of these little known factors which are said to be so all important in body building and which physicians and dieticians are investigating:

"It has been proved repeatedly by experiments that life cannot be sustained in animals or in humans if the accessory food factors, or vitamines are wholly lacking. Vitality lessens immediately upon a reduction in the supply of vitamines, and death ensues unless the proper amount is restored. As their chemical nature is unknown, they have been classified as "fat soluble A," "water soluble B," and water soluble C; sometimes spoken of as "A, B and C factors." All three factors are really essential for perfect growth and maintenance. Various disorders of the body are corrected by correcting the deficiency in some one of these "factors." By eating the foods which provide us with the proper amount of each kind of vitamines, we shall be taking preventive measures against failing health and vitality.

"I want to emphasize the tremendous value of milk as a food, whole raw milk, not pasteurized, and not skimmed. It is one of the few foods which contain all three kinds of vitamines. It is also one of the very few which contain protein, fats, and carbohydrates, which are as you know the vital elements that compose our foods. Every food contains one or two of these elements, but it is the exception to find one food containing them all. In fact, milk is a veritable gold mine to the seeker after health, if a normal stomach permits of its digestion. But because of its incompatibility with certain other foods, such as succulent vegetables, and sugar, the taking of milk seems best between meals instead of using it as a beverage and an adjunct to the regular meal."

HERSHOLT PLAYS ANOTHER INSANE ROLE AT GATEWAY

When Jean Hersholt had been cast for the third consecutive time in the role of a lunatic, he asked: "Do I act insane? I begin to feel as though I were going insane." He plays the part of Ezra, the maniac, in the Goldwyn production, "Red Lights," which is at the Gateway Theater today.

Previous to being cast in this role Hersholt played the part of Ben Lettis in Mary Pickford's "Tess of the Storm Country," and just before that he created the role of Jule in "When Romance Rides."

"I played the role of Christ in a number of plays," said Hersholt, "and I could not help but feel the part. Since the producers have started casting me as a maniac, I am beginning to think I feel that part also."

WESTERN KNIGHT IS "IN THE SPIDER" AT THE GLENDALE

However swashbuckling, derring-do and quixotic the knights of the continent were, and be their cadaclo real or feigned, they do possess, for the average American, the appeal of the honest-to-goodness, two-fisted, hip-heavy puncher of our old west.

With this thought in mind William Farnum set to work to bring before the American public the person of Billy Buell, a man long sung in the saga of the southwest.

The completed production of William Fox is called "The Gun Fighter" and will open at the Glendale Theater today. John Frederick, the cinema-plume of Max Brand the popular novelist, in searching among the obscure literatures of the southwest for a suitable story for William Farnum, struck the tradition on which "The Gun Fighter" is based.

Many years ago, before California was as populous as it is today, the Cascade Valley held a carnage of which outsiders heard bloody tales. Two families holding exclusive rights to the valley were at each other's throats, in one of the most fearful and venomous feuds in the world's history.

Billy Buell, a steel-nerved adventurer, was responsible for its end, after each family had experienced seventeen years of heart-rending loss.

SPEAKER URGES INSTRUCTION IN HEALTH HABITS

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 12.—Instruction of children of the "dangerous," or pre-school, age in mental health habits was urged today by Dr. Mary Riggs Noble, chief of the division of child health of the Pennsylvania state department of health, in an address before the first annual meeting of the American Child Health association, in session here.

Dr. Noble was speaking on the general topic "Problems of State and City Child Health Officials," and she selected "The Pre-School Child—Practical Methods of Securing Medical Examination and Supervision" as the subject of her address. This classification includes children of the run-about ages, between two and six years old.

"Mental health habits," she said, "center around self-control, self-expression, obedience, courage, clean mental content, right storing of the unconscious, right emotional steering."

"The reasons why so much must be done in these four years form the crux of many of the problems of prevention."

"It is the time to establish firmly physical health habits."

"It is the time to catch the early defect and do away with it before lasting harm comes. This can be done by a periodic, regularly recurring and complete physical examination by a doctor and the compilation of a complete record of all findings at each examination. These should be available for reference and should be passed on with the child to the school."

"The age from two to six is, we grant, the 'home period,' but the mother, even the most intelligent and best intentioned, does not know all that is needed, let alone how to bring to pass the best for her child. She must have the opportunity for finding all this out. Child health centers and conferences are still widely recognized as one of the best methods of educating mothers, and a second valuable method is by study clubs."

"Superintendents, principals and teachers should welcome the chance to procure a better 'stock' of first-grade material and should be concerned over the pre-school child to the end that he may arrive at the school room door 100 per cent fit, with brains unhampered by some remedial defect and a beginning of personality and behavior building that will simplify the teacher's job. This will be less costly and will insure a better product all round."

Humpty Dumpty, the nationally known clown, who will bring his Children's Circus to Glendale the latter part of next week, will give a free preview of the circus tomorrow at 1 o'clock. The entertainment will be held in the big auditorium over the Glendale Daily Press office and all school children of Glendale, Burbank and Eagle Rock will be admitted absolutely free.

Humpty Dumpty, the famous clown, will arrive by airplane about eleven o'clock tomorrow morning and will go directly to the circus headquarters next door to this newspaper to arrange final plans for his circus.

Humpty wants to make it clear that this is the only circus of its kind in the world, a kid's circus, for the kids and by the kids, and only those adults who wish to go back to the irresponsible days of boyhood and participate in the pleasures of boyville are asked to come. Humpty Dumpty has promised to turn over his entire circus to the children and allow them to run it according to the way children have always believed a circus should be run. "For," says Humpty, who knows how a circus should be run better than the average kids, "ask any adult where a giraffe's horns are, in front of their ears, in back of their ears, or over their ears, and try to find out. If you really want to know just ask any kid that has ever been to the circus."

Humpty Dumpty's menagerie from the land of Oz, is said to be the most weird and unusual collection of freaks in the world. Animals unknown to the world of science will be on hand living and breathing, performing their wonderful feats. Side shows such as Alice could never find in all her travels through Wonderland. Free

SAN DIEGO TEAM TO MEET CUBS IN GRIDIRON BATTLE

Southern Branch University of California will take on the San Diego Teachers' college tomorrow afternoon in a hot tilt on Moore Field. The Cubs have been practicing behind closed gates for the past week and are said by those who are in the know to be in splendid condition for the battle. They are a decided improvement over last year's team, and are much better than they looked earlier in the season.

The San Diego outfit was bumped last Saturday by the Occidental eleven, but is rapidly recovering, and will give the Cubs a hot race.

Says Piles Heal Up and Disappear Forever

Seldom Fails to Give Absolute Relief from All Pain and Suffering. Guaranteed by All Good Druggists.

Many sufferers from Piles or Hemorrhoids have become despondent because they have been led to believe that their case was hopeless and that there was nothing in the world to help them.

To these people we say, "Go to your druggist and get an original box of MOAVA SUPPOSITORIES." One of these inserted into the rectum according to directions will be found to give immediate relief.

They reach the source of the trouble and by their soothing, healing, antiseptic action first allay the pain and soreness and then by direct contact with the ulcers and piles cause them to heal up and disappear forever.

It's simply wonderful how speedily they act. Blessed relief often comes in two days. Even in cases that have steadily resisted all known treatments, marvelous results have been obtained. MOAVA is one of the wonderful discoveries of recent years and any sufferer from Piles or Hemorrhoids who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded.—Adv.

Free passes will also be given away to many who attend the entertainment tomorrow.

C. of C. Secretaries
Pay Visit to Watts

Wednesday night William Dunkerly, secretary of the Pasadena Chamber of Commerce; Malcolm Fraser, former secretary at Anaheim, who has recently been made manager of the Tournament of Roses of Pasadena, and Secretary E. F. Sanders of the Glendale chamber, motored to Watts to a meeting of that chamber where they participated in a discussion of the general work that a Chamber of Commerce has to do in Southern California in solving the problems that arise in rapidly growing municipalities. About 200 guests were present.

The big problem of Watts, 7½ miles from Los Angeles, according to Secretary Sanders, is the failure to segregate its negro population. It is feeling the effects in low property values, and an effort is being made to establish fine residential districts which will be closely restricted in this matter. In other respects the town has many advantages, one being trolley car service every two minutes.
